

Guide to Graduate Programs in Forensic and Legal Psychology 2019-2020

A resource for prospective students

Updated by: Jessica Hart, MA, LPA and Katherine Hazen, MA, JD

Guide developed in collaboration with the Teaching, Training, and Careers Committee of the American Psychology-Law Society, Division 41

Guide to Graduate Programs in Forensic and Legal Psychology

The Guide, now in its 5th edition, seeks to provide a comprehensive resource for prospective students interested in furthering their graduate training and education in psychology and law. Current graduate programs in forensic and legal psychology are listed alphabetically by degree type: doctoral programs (Ph.D. and Psy.D.), joint programs (Ph.D./J.D., Psy.D./J.D., J.D./M.A., Ph.D./M.L.S.), and masters-level programs. Each program is then described using the same categories, including department information, student applications/admissions, financial information/assistance, research, internship/practica, employment of department graduates, and any other additional information available. All information or lack of information was reported by the school themselves and was not gleaned by the originators of the guide from publically available sources.

The 1st edition of this guide was produced by Dr. Garret Berman and students. The 2nd edition was revised by Dr. Matthew Huss, with assistance from Betsy Aderhold and Jenna Boulas, at Creighton University. The 3rd edition was revised by Dr. Matthew Huss, with assistance from Jared Ruchensky. The 4th edition was revised by Dr. Apryl Alexander, with assistance from students. Previous members of the Teaching, Training, and Careers (TTC) Committee also gave valuable feedback on an earlier version.

In its current iteration, The Guide was updated and revised as part of a new TTC Initiative. Specifically, credit is due to the hard work and dedication of two student members: Jessica Hart and Katherine Hazen, in collaboration with the remaining members: Melinda Wolbransky (Chair), Nadja Schreiber Campos (Past Chair), Jonathan Golding, Kimberley McClure, Daniel Murrie, and Christina Riggs-Romaine.

Questions or edits regarding the guide itself or any schools that would like to be included in the guide can email the TTC Committee at ttccommittee41@gmail.com.

PH.D. PROGRAMS

Arizona State University
 Ph.D. program in Law and Psychology
 Arizona State University
 Phoenix, AZ 85069
Director of Program: Nick Schweitzer
Email: njs@asu.edu
<http://lawpsych.asu.edu>

Programs & Degrees Offered: Ph.D. Program in Law and Psychology Concurrent enrollment with J.D. possible, but not formalized	APA Accredited: N/A
Department Information: This program is housed in ASU's New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences – one of four units at ASU that offer psychology programs. Program faculty are a part of ASU's Law and Behavioral Science group, consisting of 15 faculty and over 1200 students who work at the intersection of law and psychology. Students may choose their mentor from among the core faculty. (We recommend contacting individual faculty members to assess their interest in admitting students.) The program consists of 84 credits (30 research credits and 54 coursework credits) that can be completed in 5-6 years. A thesis, comprehensive exam, and dissertation are required. Students entering with a MA/MS may have the thesis and up to 30 credits waived.	Tuition: Ph.D. students are eligible for full tuition remission with a TA/RA position. Financial Assistance: TA/RA positions are available and include stipend, health insurance, and full tuition remission. Average stipend is $20,000 for 9 months. While ASU does not guarantee funding for more than one year at a time, this program will not admit a student unless we expect to be able to provide 4-5 years of funding.
Student Applications: Applications received each year: 45-65 Offers extended each year: 2-4 Admissions Requirements: Applications materials include transcripts, GRE-General scores, three letters of recommendation, a personal statement, and an optional CV/resume. There are no minimum admission criteria and we examine applications holistically. However, based on the competitive nature of the application process, students with GPAs of 3.5+, GRE General (V+Q) scores of 320+, good fit with a faculty mentor, and strong research experience will be at an advantage. Strengths in one area may make up for weaknesses in another. Applicants should address their suitability for doctoral study in their personal statement.	Research: This is a research-oriented program. Students are expected to conduct empirical research at the intersection of law and psychology and then present / publish that research in academic outlets appropriate to the field. Internship/Pratica: No internships are required. Employment of Department Graduates: This is a new program; no graduation data are available. Additional Information: It is possible to concurrently enroll with the JD program at ASU's Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law. Students need to independently apply and be admitted to both programs. Students doing this can double-count 12 credits of elective coursework toward both degrees.

Programs & Degrees Offered: PhD in Clinical Psychology with an emphasis in Forensic Psychology	APA Accredited: Pending
Department Information: The PhD Program in Clinical Psychology adheres to the scientist-practitioner model and was started in 2017. The department has over 30 full-time faculty, including 8 core program faculty and 6 associated faculty (2 of these core faculty members are clinical forensic practitioners and scholars, and 1 associated faculty member is an experimental forensic psychologist). The program requires 86 credits to graduate. Students are required to pass a comprehensive exam and complete a second-year research project, doctoral dissertation, and pre-doctoral internship. The forensic psychology emphasis requires completion of four courses, including forensic assessment and psychological science and law, as well as a practicum in a forensic setting. The program only enrolls full-time students. Graduating students are eligible for licensure. The program has been authorized for an APA accreditation site visit and expects to receive accreditation in the spring of 2020.	Tuition: Overall cost for completion: 0; the program is fully funded. Financial Assistance: The program offers opportunities for full funding, including stipends and tuition waivers, through research fellowships, teaching assistantships, grants, and clinical training.
Student Applications: Last year, the program received 106 applications and admitted 15 students (yielding a cohort of 10). Typically, 25% of students opt for the forensic emphasis. Admissions Requirements: Recommended Scores: GPA: ≥ 3.2 -3.5, GRE Quantitative: ≥ 50 th percentile, GRE Verbal: ≥ 50 th percentile. Other criteria: Number of recommendations: 3; GRE Subject Test is optional; personal statement; writing sample; program accepts students who have already received their master's degree Applicants are evaluated on grades, GRE scores, previous research and clinical experience, writing, and fit with program faculty and required training. Students may be accepted on merit if scores fall below recommended minimums.	Research: The program equally emphasizes developing students' research and clinical skills. All students publish and present their research at conferences. Internship/Pratica: Students are required to complete 3 years of practicum and a year-long, full-time predoctoral internship. Employment of Department Graduates: No graduates to date Additional Information: Program faculty are theoretically eclectic, with perspectives that include cognitive-behavioral and integrative approaches, among others. Additional Information: The doctoral program in clinical psychology at TAMU does not offer specific research and training tracks but there are various emphasis areas that graduate students can pursue, including forensic psychology. In addition to the forensic research conducted in Dr. Edens' lab, several other faculty have research interests relevant to the legal system, such as interests in personality and externalizing behavior problems, malingering and response distortion, and adult and adolescent substance use. Practicum training at TAMU may involve the opportunity to provide clinical services in local jail and probation settings and (occasionally) juvenile justice settings. Graduate students also conduct mental health evaluations of public safety job applicants (e.g., police, jail staff) through our in-house Psychology Clinic. Elective coursework on forensic psychology is offered at the graduate level and students frequently have the opportunity to teach undergraduate courses on psychology and law. Outside the Psychology Department, numerous other TAMU faculty have interests in a broad range of (non-psychology) forensic topics, including entomology, DNA/genetics, pathobiology, and paleopathology.

Programs & Degrees Offered: Ph.D. in Counseling Psychology	APA Accredited: Yes
Department Information: The USM counseling psychology program has been in existence in some form since 1958 and current ranks as the #1 Counseling Psychology program in the nation based on a 100% pass rate of the national licensure exam, according to counselingpsychology.org . This is first and foremost a generalized program with opportunities to gain specialized experience in forensic and correctional psychology contexts, including research and practice. There are 7 core program faculty members who are part of the larger School of Psychology that includes clinical psychology, school psychology, and brain and behavior programs. In addition to coursework and practica, students are required to complete two empirical projects: a master's thesis and doctoral dissertation (master's theses from previous institutions will be considered for transfer). The median number of years required for completion of a degree is 5. Graduating students are eligible for licensure.	Tuition: $0.00 (see below) Financial Assistance: On-campus students are full-time and are provided a funding package that includes a full tuition waiver, a stipend for a 20-hour graduate assistantship, and 50% of their health insurance premium. When all other program requirements but the dissertation have been met, students typically register for dissertation and/or internship hours on a part-time basis (currently $488/credit hour). The out-of-state fee is waived for internship and dissertation regardless of state of residence at the time these requirements are complete.
Student Applications: On average receive 70 applications each year with 6-7 applicants are accepted each year (1-2 accepted on forensic-focused research teams). Admissions Requirements: Bachelors in psychology is preferred. The average undergraduate GPA is 3.74. Students who have completed bachelors and master's degrees are considered. Submission requirements include GRE scores, academic transcripts, a personal statement (see program website for specific guidance on this), resume/CV, 3 letters of recommendation, and a writing sample. The deadline to apply is December 1 st .	Research: Nearly all students present their research at regional and national conferences and most are co-authored on peer-reviewed publications. Internship/Practica: Students typically complete six to eight semesters (two to three years) of practicum, which includes a full-time summer externship during the second year. Practicum begins in the second year in the program training clinic, and continues in agencies in the community in the latter years. In all but 1 year between 2008 and 2018, the internship match rate was 100%. Employment of Program Graduates: Prisons, community mental health settings, psychiatric and medical settings, Veterans' Administration hospitals, independent practice, academia Additional Information: https://www.usm.edu/graduate-programs/psychology-counseling.php

Programs & Degrees Offered: PhD Forensic Psychology *Direct Entry PhD in Forensic Psychology	APA Accredited: No
Department Information: This program is housed in Ontario Tech. University's Faculty of Social Science and Humanities. Number of full-time faculty: 8. The PhD in Forensic Psychology combines disciplinary and specialized study in Forensic Psychology, study in research methods and statistics, and applied learning experiences to prepare students to work in a variety of settings. Students may choose their supervisor from among the core faculty. (We recommend contacting individual faculty members to assess their interest in admitting students.) The program consists of 55 credits (40 research credits and 15 coursework credits) that can be completed in 4-5 years. A candidacy exam, comprehensive exam, and thesis are required.	Tuition: Full-time graduate tuition per year is $ $7,579.30 CAD (Canadian Domestic) or $18,790.20 CAD (International) Financial Assistance: Minimum funding of $18,000 CAD per year is guaranteed for 4 years. Minimum funding may be achieved through any one or more of, but is not limited to, the following: graduate research assistantships, teaching assistantships and/or research assistantships. Additional scholarships are available for domestic and international applicants.
Student Applications: On average receive 8 to 10 applications each year. 2-3 applicants are accepted each year. Program only enrolls full-time students. Admissions Requirements: Applications materials include transcripts, GRE-General scores, three letters of recommendation, a statement of academic intent, and a CV/resume. There is a minimum GPA requirement of 3.7. However, based on the competitive nature of the application process, students with GPAs of 4.0+, strong GRE scores, good fit with a faculty mentor, and strong research experience will be at an advantage. Strengths in one area may make up for weaknesses in another. Applicants should address their suitability for doctoral study in their personal statement. *Each year, a small number of undergraduate students may be admitted directly into the PhD program without a master's degree. This direct-entry option is for undergraduate students with exceptional academic performance throughout their bachelor's degree.	Research: This is a research-oriented program. Students are expected to conduct empirical research in Forensic psychology and then present / publish that research in academic outlets appropriate to the field. Internship/Pratica: No internships are required. Employment of Department Graduates: This is a new program; no graduation data are available.

Programs & Degrees Offered: Master of Science, Psychology (on-campus) Master of Science, Forensic Psychology (online)	APA Accredited: No
Department Information: These programs are housed in ASU's New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences – one of four units at ASU that offer psychology programs. Program faculty are a part of ASU's Program on Law and Behavioral Science – a collection of faculty who work at the intersection of law and psychology. The on-campus MS program in Psychology is a research-oriented mentor-based program. Students interested in legal/forensic topics can select relevant law-psych faculty as their mentor. The program is 33 credits and taken over two years of full-time study. The online MS program in Forensic Psychology is designed for working individuals who want to obtain a deeper knowledge of forensic psychology for career advancement. This program is 33 credits that can be completed in 12-15 months of accelerated study. It is a coursework-based program that does not lead to licensure. A capstone course/exam is required.	Tuition: ON CAMPUS: $11,900 (in state) or $29,875 (out-of-state). Students from the western US may be eligible for in-state tuition (see http://www.wiche.edu/wrgp). ONLINE: $612 per credit regardless of residency. Financial Assistance: On-campus MS students are eligible for CA (course assistant) positions that provide $4,000 - $7,500 per semester depending on the assignment. Most students interested in CA positions are able to secure one. Additionally, all applicants are automatically considered for a limited number of scholarships of up to $10,000. Online MS students are eligible for federal financial aid.
Student Applications: On Campus: 60-100 applicants / 20 admitted each year. Online: New program; admission data not yet available. Admissions Requirements: On campus: No minimum requirements. Admitted students have an average GPA of 3.5, GRE of 303, good letters of recommendation, and a personal statement that describes a research fit with a chosen mentor. Online: No minimum requirements. GPA of 3.2 recommended. GRE is recommended but not required. Two letters of recommendation are required. Personal statement should address suitability for graduate study in Forensic Psychology.	Research: The on-campus MS program is research focused. Students are expected to engage in research under the mentorship of a faculty member. A thesis or applied project is required. Internship/Practica: No internships are required. On-campus students may participate in ASU's general internship program. Employment of Department Graduates: Graduates of the on-campus MS program typically seek admission to PhD programs. Alternative career paths have included research and policy analysis positions in government and non-profits. The online program in Forensic Psychology is new for 2017 and no employment data are available. Additional Information: None.

Programs & Degrees Offered: Master's in Clinical Psychology with concentration in Forensic Psychology	APA Accredited: N/A
Department Information: The psychology department has 30+ full time faculty members and several full-time instructional staff and clinical specialists. We have four faculty members with psychology and law foci (three of whom are licensed clinical psychologists) and are closely affiliated with two psychologists in other departments who are engaged in psychology law research. The MA program requires 36 credits of course work and a year-long clinical externship. We enroll full- and part-time students, and admit students in both the Spring and Fall terms.	Tuition: For 2019–2020, $700.50 per credit hour for New Jersey residents, and $1,024.41 per credit hour for non-NJ residents. Financial Assistance: Each year the program offers a few graduate assistantships and teaching assistantships to especially qualified applicants who express interest in these opportunities.
Student Applications: Last year the forensic concentration received 57 applications and made 27 offers of admission. Admissions Requirements: General GRE; 12 credits in psychology at the undergraduate level, with one course each in research methods and statistics; personal statement and two letters of recommendation. GPA should be above a 3.0 and GREs should be at or above the 22 nd percentile, but we take a holistic approach to application review, considering GRE scores, grades, previous research and clinically relevant experience, and fit with program faculty and required training. GRE Subject Test is not required	Research: A thesis is not required but students are encouraged to join a lab and become involved in research. Internship/Pratica: Students are required to complete a year-long, part-time clinical externship (450 hours). Clinical training occurs in New Jersey and New York with diverse populations, in settings that include family services and child protection, forensic mental health, and corrections. Employment of Department Graduates: The program has not formally collected these data. Additional Information: Program faculty are theoretically eclectic, with perspectives that include cognitive-behavioral, psychodynamic, and integrative approaches, among others. Many faculty have interests in juvenile and family-related issues.

Programs & Degrees Offered: MSc Forensic Psychology	APA Accredited: No
Department Information: This program is housed in Ontario Tech. University's Faculty of Social Science and Humanities. Number of full-time faculty: 8. The MSc in Forensic Psychology combines disciplinary and specialized study in Forensic Psychology, study in research methods and statistics, and applied learning experiences to prepare students to work in a variety of settings. Students may choose their supervisor from among the core faculty. (We recommend contacting individual faculty members to assess their interest in admitting students.) The program consists of 30 credits (12 research credits and 18 coursework credits) that can be completed in 2 years.	Tuition: Full-time graduate tuition per year is $ $7,579.30 CAD (Canadian Domestic) or $18,790.20 CAD (International) Financial Assistance: Minimum funding of $16,000 CAD per year is guaranteed for 2 years. Minimum funding may be achieved through any one or more of, but is not limited to, the following: graduate research assistantships, teaching assistantships and/or research assistantships. Additional scholarships are available for domestic and international applicants.
Student Applications: Admissions Requirements: Applications materials include transcripts, GRE-General scores, three letters of recommendation, a statement of academic intent, and a CV/resume. There is a minimum GPA requirement of 3.0. However, based on the competitive nature of the application process, students with GPAs of 3.5+, strong GRE scores, good fit with a faculty mentor, and strong research experience will be at an advantage. Strengths in one area may make up for weaknesses in another. Applicants should address their suitability for graduate study in their personal statement.	Research: This is a research-oriented program. Students are expected to conduct empirical research at the intersection of law and psychology and then present / publish that research in academic outlets appropriate to the field. Internship/Pratica: No internships are required. Employment of Department Graduates: This is a relatively new program; Of our graduates thus far, 80% have pursued further graduate studies.
